

SHORT TERM OF CONGRESS IS CONVENED

FACE HEAVY PROGRAM

President's Proposals for Railroad Legislation to Receive Foremost Attention—Delivers Address Tomorrow.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Dec. 4.—Congress assembled promptly at twelve today for the short session which will mark the opening of the Wilson administration. The president's plan for railroad legislation, the most important of the program, was the first item on the agenda.

Today's opening was marked by the usual flood of resolutions, bills and amendments. The president's plan for railroad legislation, the most important of the program, was the first item on the agenda.

Democracy's Claim Control.
Senator Clark declared the next house on the basis of the last election would show at least 216 democrats without Sully, one New Jersey Democrat, and one New York Democrat.

Four bills designed to touch the high cost of food were introduced today. The first, by Representative Fitzgerald of New York, proposed a food embargo, to regulate transportation of foodstuffs, and the other would regulate the sale of foodstuffs through the parcel post and reduce the rates on food.

The enactment of either of the bills, said Representative Fitzgerald, would bring immediate relief to the country. The people want action. They are heartily tired of talks and investigations. Petitions were filed in favor of legislation.

With prospect of a much reduced majority in the new House, or possibly a line-up on no vote, administration control will be in doubt, administration leaders have laid their plans to work at high speed in the hope of enacting the most important part of their program before it is endangered in the Sixty-fifth congress.

Adamson Law First.
Foremost is completion of President Wilson's railroad legislation program and the passage of the Adamson law. The remainder of the program, which the President has included in his message, will be taken up after the strike has been threatened last summer or in fact a lockout, until the situation has been investigated.

Second item on the agenda to the railroad is the restriction of shipments of foodstuffs to Europe. Thousands of petitions asking for this restriction have been received by members of Congress and at the White House. In every case it is argued that the United States demand a restriction of shipments abroad. So far as has been disclosed President Wilson and members of the cabinet have no plans for acting on the subject, but it is known that various members of Congress intend to push the subject and it may develop a fight. Chairman Fitzgerald of the appropriations committee has already announced his intention of introducing a bill for a food embargo.

Women Active.
Women suffragists, following their fight for the passage of the Susan B. Anthony amendment to the constitution, have laid all the lines for their campaign, and it is possible that the demands made by Congress into the demands made by the suffragists. The first day of the session never sees much business done. Re-elected members get congratulatory letters, major and minority leaders receive ovations as they walk down the aisle. Galleries are crowded with join in the demonstrations of hand clapping and cheering as their favorites take their seats; except in the Senate where formal dignity prevails. A few formal demonstrations of hand clapping and cheering as their favorites take their seats; except in the Senate where formal dignity prevails.

To Follow Custom.
In accordance with the custom he set at the beginning of his term, President Wilson will read his address to the clerk's desk in the Hall of the House while Senators and Representatives are assembled before him on the benches. Members of the cabinet are crowded with join in the demonstrations of hand clapping and cheering as their favorites take their seats; except in the Senate where formal dignity prevails.

Today's opening marks the closing of the old Congress and the opening of the new. In the next Congress the clerk and the pages and the Speaker will be calling "The Lady from Montana."

Miss Josephine Rankin, republican, first woman elected to Congress, is expected to be in her seat there. She does not sit in the present session, although many uninformed expected to see her today—but comes in with the new Congress. When she does arrive the House will be confronted with revising its own rules to give her a place on the floor.

In the Senate there were three new members to take the oath of office. James E. Watson of Indiana, republican, takes the unexpired term of the late Senator Shively, Democrat who was temporarily succeeded by Thomas Taggart, Bert M. Fernald, republican, of Maine, was elected to the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Bueligh. William F. Kirby, Democrat, of Arkansas, was elected to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Clarke.

While the organization fight in the House does not come until the assembling of the next Congress, the Senate probably will see some political maneuvering in the selection of a successor to Senator Clarke as president pro tempore. Senators who have their eyes on the major party floor leadership and vacant by the defeat of Senator Kern, are loath to take the office of pro tempore. Strangely enough the disposition seems to be to avoid an office instead of seeking it. It is because they realize that the man who becomes president pro tempore is out of the race for the floor leadership. There has been some talk of giving the office of president pro tempore to Senator O'Gorman, who retires with the end of Congress. This is a point of view, but it is a compromise to the retiring senator and would leave all the candidates for the leadership free to enter the contest. It is the important appropriation bills for the fiscal year will occupy most of the time between now and adjournment, much general legislation of the administrative program will be urged. Committees in charge of conservation legislation, the Webb bill to authorize domestic corporations to maintain collective foreign sales agencies, the immigration bill and a corrupt practices measure to limit national campaign expenditures are certain to be active from the beginning.

When Congress reconvened today President Wilson had assured Speaker Clark and Representative Webb, majority leader, that they would try to hasten enactment of railroad legislation desired by the administration. Both expressed their confidence that the measures would be passed last night that measures to supplement the Adamson law could be passed in the short session.

AT SKATING FROLIC
Duluth, Minn., Dec. 4.—Margaret Swendby, daughter of Rudolph Forst of Decorah, Iowa, guests at a week end house party at Pike Lake, near Duluth, were drowned last evening, while enjoying ice skating, before returning to their home town.

The body of Miss Swendby was found, but that of Forst was not found. The two victims were skating together, while Gilbert Bates and Alice Swendby were following closely. Without warning, the ice gave way, and the first victim disappeared. Miss Swendby narrowly escaped following them.

While scores of others stood helplessly Bates then swung into the hole. Alice Swendby tried to help, but was thrown into the water. Both dove after the disappeared couple, and did all they could, but to no avail.

FOOD EMBARGO THREAT STIRS CONGRESSMEN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, Dec. 4.—Representative Fitzgerald and his threatened food embargo legislation was the subject of interest when the Congress convened for its dying session at noon today.

Fitzgerald's declaration late in November that he would introduce a resolution in the United States and reduce the cost of living stirred up a political hornet's nest. The embargo itself, Fitzgerald's action, if he takes it, may portend a fight between supporters of President Wilson, who is against an embargo, and the republican delegation, whose leader is Fitzgerald.

Both members and gallery in the House watched with interest for any indication of the attitude of the republican itself, toward the Democratic machine. Any move by Tammanyites would be the more significant because they hold the balance of power in the House.

Representatives from west and middle west farm districts were, absolutely alert for any factional split on the threatened embargo. They are opposed to it and have threatened that if it is introduced they will combat it with a retaliatory measure calling for an embargo on manufactured goods such as constant bulk of the exports to Europe from the eastern manufacturing states.

Packed galleries greeted the gavel of Speaker Clark and Vice President Marshall as chattering members of both houses, in most cases meeting for the first time since the eventful day in early September when they rushed through the Adamson eight-hour law turned to hear the familiar admonition to "be in order."

ROCK COUNTY SENDS RECORD DELEGATION TO BELOIT MEETING

Older Boys' Meeting Proves Great Success—Meets Next Year in Appleton.

By sending a delegation of ninety boys, in addition to all those from Beloit, the Older Boys' conference, held at the Line City on Friday, Saturday and Sunday of last week, Rock county set up for itself the enviable record of having the largest representation that any county has ever sent to such a convention. Last year this county had the largest delegation even though the convention was held at Beloit.

Much of the success in securing the attendance of so many boys from this locality is due to the untiring work of those men who have been arousing interest in the conference among the smaller communities of the county. The delegation from Rock county consisted of 15, Clinton 14, Evans 12, Milton 10, Janesville 8, Edgerton 7, Rock Prairie 3, Fulton 2, Shopiere 2, Bergen 4, Footville 4. The following boys from Janesville were present: Leon Jones, George Spradling, Eugene Lane, Ed. Ewing, Paul Richards, Barrow Spoon, John Taylor, William Noble, Morris Russell, Leo Powers and William Korst.

In order to conserve the inspiration of the state conference, a smaller organization of Older Boys has been perfected for Rock county. Its aim is to create for the various communities definite goals of effort for the coming year, and to help these groups in attaining their ends. Roland Williams, captain of the state high school football championship team, was elected chairman of this county conference. Christian Hanson of Clinton was named the secretary, and Graham McFarland of Rock Prairie was appointed to act with these two as an executive committee.

The Beloit conference was a great success from every viewpoint. There were over eight hundred registrants, delegates in attendance, in addition to those who were present at only one or two sessions, and in addition to a large number of speakers from various parts of the state and from outside the state.

Every delegate was most enthusiastic, and under the direction of Paul Richards of this city, who acted as chairman of the conference, presided at all the business meetings, the boys accomplished much in outlining for themselves courses and plans of action for the coming year.

The speakers included not only men who are nationally famous in the field of boys' work, but a large number of men prominent throughout the state in connection with their work.

Y. M. C. A. and with the Wisconsin Sunday School association. A number of well known college athletes who have interested themselves in association work were on the program.

The conference decided to accept Appleton's invitation to hold their meeting in that city next year, officiating for the coming year are: Harry Garland of Beloit, president; David McKelvie of Milwaukee, vice-president; Paul Simons, Oshkosh, secretary; and Harry Kemp of Sparta, assistant secretary.

WHAT MADISON PLANS FOR SCOUT MASTERS

Boy Scout Movement Being Pushed In Madison By Men Interested In The Movement.

That the Boy Scout movement is general throughout the country and cities adjacent to Janesville are taking an active interest in the work, is evidenced by the following story from Madison of the activities in that city to increase the membership in the organization, supply scout masters and bring up to the general standard of the scouts.

The Boy Scout movement in Madison was given momentum at a meeting of the executive council at a luncheon at the Madison club yesterday. Various phases of the movement were discussed and plans for increasing the membership were set forth and adopted.

Dr. J. C. Elsom, scout commissioner, professor of physical education at the university, discussed the work and benefits of the Boy Scout movement, and suggested that a secretary be engaged to carry on the work of organizing the various groups of boys in the city—to outline to the boys the aims and activities of the Boy Scout movement.

L. M. Hanks, president of the local council of the organization, suggested a plan whereby the boys of the city may organize and select their own leaders who will represent them at a meeting to be called at a later date, at which time the Boy Scout program will be taken in hand in order to reach all the boys. Hanks advised the printing of posters which are to be distributed in the school buildings of the city where the boys who may be interested may be reached.

Mr. Hanks said that the great need in the city now is to secure efficient scoutmasters, and the plan he suggested seemed most practicable to the executive committee. Weekly meetings to be held on Friday noon were decided upon at which the progress of the work will be reported and further action will be planned from week to week.

The officers of the Boy Scouts in Madison are: President, L. M. Hanks; scout commissioner, J. C. Elsom; secretary, G. C. Morris; vice presidents, Justice M. B. Rosenberg, C. K. Keith, J. B. Ramsay, George Gary and H. L. Butler.

250,000 POUNDS OF
CARP IN ONE HAUL

Two hundred and fifty thousand pounds of carp at a single haul!

In other words, ten carloads of 25,000 pounds each of the high-brow piscatorial culture of the four lakes were hauled out in one sweep of the seine from Lake Waubesa, near Edwards Park!

Some fish story, isn't it?

But that is just what happened on Wednesday and Thursday of last week when Rice & May, professional fishermen of Madison, hauled their big net in along the southwest side of the lake. The haul was started Wednesday morning but was not finished until Thanksgiving day in the afternoon. It is said to be the most successful and largest taking of fish of any kind of record in Wisconsin. The fish will sell for spot cash at five and six cents per pound, f. o. b. at McFarland, where they already are being loaded. At five cents per pound the haul is worth $12,500 and the state's share, one cent per pound, will amount to $2,500.

Chairman James Nevin, Commissioner F. B. Moody and Secretary R. S. Scheibel of the conservation department, drove out to the lake Friday afternoon to inspect the catch and reported last night that it was an eye-opener.

Mr. Scheibel said that the estimate of 250,000 pounds is conservative and that when the shipment is cleaned up it probably will be nearer to 300,000. The haul was made on a fine sandy beach and after it was started it was deemed wise to encircle the mass with wire to keep the fish alive until shipment.

GEORGE TERRY DIES VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

Succumbs at Mercy Hospital as Result of Injuries Sustained When Struck By an Automobile.

George B. Terry, aged sixty-one, a life-long resident of the town of La Prairie, passed away on Sunday at Mercy Hospital as a result of injuries which he suffered when an automobile backed into his rig on Saturday, Nov. 26. He sustained a fracture of the collar bone, scalp wounds and internal injuries which resulted in his death.

The accident occurred about six o'clock in the evening. Mr. Terry was driving on Dodge street, near the Germania Hotel, when an automobile suddenly backed from an alleyway, striking the front of his rig. He was thrown out and his horse broke away. The driver of the car failed to stop to make inquiries with regard to the accident, but sped away before his identity could be learned. There were two others riding with him. Police have been searching for the parties, but as yet have been unsuccessful.

AMERICAN & IDEAL RADIATORS & BOILERS

IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators are built scientifically to extract and distribute the greatest possible volume of heat from each ounce of coal. Heat is circulated three times as rapidly as in old-fashioned heaters—which is one of the strong reasons why IDEAL Boilers burn one-third less fuel than other devices, and permit cheapest fuel to be used.

Janesville Elks yesterday paid tribute to departed brothers in fitting memorial services at the new Masonic theatre, in accordance with fraternal decree of the order that the first Sunday of each December shall be dedicated in memoriam to those who have passed away. The theatre was crowded, relatives and friends of the deceased and acquaintances of members of the Janesville Lodge, No. 264, being in attendance. Seats of the center section on the lower floor were occupied by those of the order.

The program was striking and impressive with musical numbers and speakers whose utterances inspired a blended feeling of brotherly love, and was befitting of the occasion.

Two wonderful addresses were given by the Rev. Father William Mahoney, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic church of this city, and by Charles E. Whelan, orator.

The orchestra of Madison, Gray's orchestra furnished the musical program.

Officers of the lodge occupied the stage, especially decorated for the occasion with the royal purple and white, the gigantic elks' head with its great antlers being mounted directly over Exalted Ruler Harold S. Schwartz.

The program was a most impressive one, the stage was covered with garlands of monstrosity white chrysanthemums. Two large American flags were appropriately draped across a window at the rear of the stage.

Those of the order who occupied the stage were: Exalted Ruler Harold S. Schwartz, Estemmed Lecturing Knight R. E. Murphy, Estemmed Lecturing Knight R. E. Murphy, Secretary H. D. Murdoch, Treasurer Cronin, Tyler Allie Razook, Chaplain, the Rev. Henry Willmann, and Inner Guard William J. Kehoe.

In addition there were the Rev. Father William Mahoney, Rev. Father William Mahoney, and Exalted Ruler L. A. Avery, who also appeared on the program.

Eclipses Others.

R. E. Ashley, Charles E. Snyder and C. A. Buchholz were the committee in charge of the arrangements, and were suitably rewarded in their efforts to make the memorial services successful in every feature.

The observance yesterday was by far the largest of any of years past. In fact the services were more elaborate than those held under the auspices of the lodge previous to this evening.

The program opened at three o'clock with the orchestra selection, "The Morning Light." Exalted Ruler Schwartz then explained the occasion and the memorial services and was followed by a harp solo by George L. Hatch. The lodge ceremonies continued, opening with a prayer by the chaplain, Rev. William Mahoney. The Rev. Mahoney then gave a short invocation.

Another orchestra number, "Church Chimes," perhaps the most beautiful number of the afternoon, at least the number which to all appearances made the deepest impression on the audience, was followed by the vocal solo, "Calvary," by Robert S. Murphy.

Whelan Excellent Speaker.

Mr. Whelan delivered his address next. Although on the program it was listed as a general address, one who had heard it could appropriately entitle it, "The Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man."

Mr. Whelan's address was upon the theme of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, and was a most impressive and inspiring one.

his associates in the profession of the law, but to hundreds with whom he had come in contact during the fifty-two years of his well-spent life of honor.

The Rev. Father William Mahoney was the next speaker. The priest's address was as follows:

"He appointed unto all men once to die, and after death comes judgment. Hebrew 9:27."

"My dear friends: There is not one of us here who should not be thinking in your mind on this occasion, when you meet in Assembly hall, to commemorate your honored dead, than this and in solemn reflection of your fraternal members as their names are placed on your mortuary tables one day in God's own good time, my fellow brethren shall meet on memorial day and we shall be able to read the list of honored dead. That this is true, no thinking man can doubt. No believing in the God human being is allowed to deny, for the voice of God is recognized in every clime.

Heeded Universally.

"It is given to all men to die, and after death comes judgment. I have said that this warning has been heeded in every clime, and history substantiates the fact. No race so savage, no people so pagan, no land so barbarous, no clime so desolate, that they did not profess belief in a hereafter. Whether it be the Chinaman in the hope of a Celestial Kingdom, or the American Indian waiting for the happy hunting ground.

All have felt that man's career does not terminate at the grave, and sound philosophy and the best of common sense tell us that the soul who believes is not, is a curiosity, an exception in the order of men, for if there is a God, and there must be, things do not make themselves without some one to control it. Laws are not given or followed without a Law Giver, an Authority to enforce them. Then the God that we cannot see and will not deceive all his children.

Proof of Almighty.

"Our martyred president, Lincoln, said 'You can fool part of the people all the time, but you cannot fool all the people all the time.' This universality of belief in the existence of a God and a hereafter is greater argument to prove the existence of each. The day that you and I like your lamented brothers shall pass through the portals of death, let each man be kept to himself. As to reasoning beings, the knowledge of the event would be sufficient to prepare them for judgment.

Anthrax Father of All Germs.
The anthrax germ is the father of all germs since it was the first discovered by the weak microscopes of half a century ago. That was because the germ was so big. The microscopes could not show the smaller germs. It was the anthrax germ, therefore, that led to the development of the microbe theory which caused such an advance in medicine.

NEW MYERS THEATRE.

Possessing more than ordinary musical comedy excellence, the World Garden extravaganza, “A World of Pleasure,” is announced for an engagement at the New Myers Theatre Sunday evening December 11th. This spectacular production has opened phenomenal successes in New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia and other large cities in the East, and it comes to this city only the unqualified endorsement of the stage and dramatic reviewers, but with the same splendid cast, chorus and scenic equipment that it had during its engagement in Chicago. The play is a spectacular production, as a feature of its presentation has been a fashion parade of the latest gowns. This has proven an extremely attractive feature and one that has caused them. The photographer was shooting only the lower half of the bulletin board. When the picture exhibited it will show her weeping at the bulletin announcement of the arrest of her sweetheart in “Enemies of Society.”

NEW MYERS THEATRE.

Next Thursday night, Dec. 7, we will have at the Myers Theatre “Some Baby.” But do not be misled by the title into believing you are going to spend an evening in the nursery. Far from it, for “Some Baby” is the title of what has been pronounced some farce, and we are promised it will be given us here with some cast. The company to be seen here is headed by chic and petite Grace Merritt, and has been carefully selected to fully bring out all the mirth of lines, scenes and situations of the play, which is the work of Zillah Covington and Jules Simonson.

When “Some Baby” was first produced at the Fulton Theatre, New York, the New York World said: “Some Baby” at the Fulton Theatre, is the most popular infant in New York,” and it goes without argument that there are a number of babies in the metropolis. This farcical comedy is replete with bright and witty lines; its action is rapid and the auditor scarcely has time to realize the humor of one situation when another is thrust before him. Of this play it has been said, “Early in the action you begin to smile, then you giggle and progress to hearty laughter and are finally seized with an irresistible desire to roar—and you do.”

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

Time Square, New York. Time—the world series game between Brooklyn and Boston Baseball enthusiasts were touched by the obvious distress of a pretty girl in a crowd in front of the bulletin board. Suddenly while the final inning was being recorded she burst into tears and turned away, sobbing. She was Florence La Badie.

A hidden movie machine was registering her tears, and no ball game caused them. The photographer was shooting only the lower half of the bulletin board. When the picture exhibited it will show her weeping at the bulletin announcement of the arrest of her sweetheart in “Enemies of Society.”

SOME CAKE!
Here's June Caprice's favorite cake recipe. “Take two pints of finely granulated sugar and one pint of butter. Stir these to a light cream and add one pint bowl of sweet milk. If the milk drivers aren't out on strike, then take a pint of sifted flour and a half pint of sifted cornstarch and four teaspoons of baking powder. Put these into a flour sifter and sift twice. Beat the whites of twenty-four eggs to a stiff froth and stir them lightly into the cake mixture. Bake in one loaf, and be careful that it does not brown too much. The cake will be sufficient for a party of thirty.”

Director Henry Otto has adapted a camera trick by which a dark curtain seems to open or close a scene. It is the device serving to explain a time-lapse, in a picture without the use of subtitle. The illusion is a perfect one.

William V. Mong, a director and actor, is at work on a pretty Christmas story. Mr. Mong is a firm believer in the value of thoroughly well constructed one, two and three reel releases, and thinks they are going to be in bigger demand than ever.

Here's one told on Jack Mullah, leading man, who recently became a father. Which friend wife he went shopping. The desired purchase Valeska Suratt, who is accused of being superstitious, recently disproved the accusation, for on the thirteenth day of the filming of the picture in which she is soon to appear she gave a lucky party. Included in the entertainment arrangements were ladders, black cats, overturned salt cellars, open umbrellas, and knives crossing the forks—and there were thirteen at the table!

Mabel Taliaferro, while doing some exterior scenes for “The Sunbeam,” was dressed in rage sitting in an automobile on eleventh avenue, New York. A crowd of street urchins gathered around her. Said one: “Gee, she's a movie actor.” Said another: “She is not. Look at her clothes.” A small and anxious voice piped up from the midst of them: “Betcha she's been placed by the Gerry society. Let's beat it!” And they all beat it.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of eighteen and I have a boy friend whom I like very much. He speaks to me every time he meets me and gives me hints about my going out with him. I never make any arrangements with him. Do you think he really wants to marry me? I don't want to tell him so. I love him dearly. What can I do to win him?

pay most of his attentions to other girls. What can I do to win him? (2) Is it wrong to kiss a fellow good night if you are engaged to him?

BLUE EYES AND DIMPLES.
(1) Pimples may be the result of so many different causes that what will cure them for one person will be useless for another. If faithful trials of external remedies do not benefit, a physician should be consulted. Often applications of a lotion made from half an ounce of glycerine, a pint of camphor water and a quarter of an ounce of powdered borax will prevent pimples. If any event, this mixture is good for the skin, if used as a substitute for water. It must be allowed to dry on.

A teaspoonful of powdered alum dissolved in half a pint of water is strongly recommended by many persons, who use it several times a day and before going to bed at night. It is so astringent in action, however, that it should be used with care, and watched, or it will be too drying.

(2) Look as pretty and be as attractive as you can. I know of no better way to win him. Be careful not to write to him. Be careful not to let him know you are writing to him. (3) No, but it is wrong to be engaged so that you can kiss a boy good night.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I went with a fellow a few times and a girl came from another town and beat my time. She has a habit of doing so. Do you think the boy cares anything for me?

(2) I went with a boy several times and recently he left town. He has never written. Would it be proper for me to write to him? (3) Do you think it is any worse to go to a skating rink than to dances?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of twenty-two and I am in love with a man of thirty-four. He is a Jew and I am a Gentile. Tell me what to do to make him propose. He always tells me that he is strong for me and things will be different some day. Tell me what to do to buy this day alone.

There are a great many girls who would like to know how to make a man propose. There is no rule, my dear. Be sweet, attractive and independent and try to do the things that please him. You cannot force him to propose.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of seventeen and I have pimples on my face. Can you suggest a cure for them?

(2) I am deeply in love with a fellow of nineteen and he seems to like me. I don't know why he likes me. I don't know why he likes me. I don't know why he likes me.

ized flour for the mollicoddle human race.

Fifteen and getting a Goitre. I am 15 and am starting to get a large neck. What can I do to prevent it? (Miss L. A.)

ANSWER.—At about your age the thyroid gland naturally enlarges somewhat, particularly at the periods. You must endeavor to avoid stasis, keep the bowel regulated by a diet which includes a large bulk of fresh fruit, the coarse vegetables (cabbage, raw, cooked, turnips, beets, carrots, etc.). Eat sea food, water cresses.

Perhaps your doctor should prescribe some form of iodine containing medicine. Take no chances on external applications unless prescribed by the doctor, for some of the things suggested by incompetent advisers are dangerous.

Household Hints

BAKING POWDER BISCUITS.
Do you have any trouble in making beautiful, light baking powder biscuits? Try this:

Use three cups of flour, three teaspoons of baking powder, one teaspoon of salt, sift these ingredients together three times, then thoroughly mix in one tablespoon of shortening, lard or butter.

Make a well in center, then pour into it the liquid, either water or skimmed milk, or milk, but instead of mixing with the fingers or a spoon as is the usual way, shake the pan vigorously, with a round motion and a lovely soft dough will be formed that only needs to be worked together with the finger tips, enough to be cut. Bake in quick oven.

NOVEL TRIMMING.
Beautiful gold lace for hats and trimmings on evening dresses can be made by pinning lace with an open mesh on oiled paper over a board, painting couple coats of washable gold paint over it. Leave on board until dry, then brush out surplus gold. Any scraps of lace will do to trim bag, or a little touch of gold lace for a hat.

Roast Leg of Veal (in place of chicken or turkey).—Purchase leg of veal. Have butchers remove bone for you (be sure and get the bone, will make good soup). Put the empty space with the following forcemeat: Grate into a mixing bowl two small cups stale bread and add, in the order mentioned, one pint drained and chopped celery tops, two tablespoons mace, half teaspoon poultry seasoning, pepper and salt to taste, two tablespoons melted butter, and the same of chopped celery tops and the same of mace. So that the dressing cannot melt out in roasting, and lay over the top a few thin slices of fat salt pork or bacon and season as for roast chicken as chicken, basting frequently. Be sure and have it done thoroughly, allowing about twenty minutes to each pound of meat in the oven. The outside should be nice and crisp. Serve with "mock giblet gravy," cranberry sauce, surprise potatoes, celery, etc.

Mock Giblet Gravy.—Boil one-half pound of veal very gently until it can be pierced with a fork, then chop coarsely and sprinkle with salt. Pour off most of the grease in the cooking, and mix with your meat was cooked) and blend in carefully two tablespoons of browned flour. Add gradually one cup of liquid in which the forcemeat was cooked, and one-half cup boiling water in which has been dissolved two chicken bouillon cubes. Stir constantly until sauce thickens and boils, then strain into a sauce pan, add the prepared liver and, as soon as heated, flavor with a few drops of kitchen bouquet and serve at English Beefsteak Pudding (serves five persons).—One and one-half cups flour, one and one-half teaspoon baking powder, pinch of salt, scant cup beef suet put through the grinder. Mix well; then take enough cold water to make a dough that will roll. Grease a deep roasting dish and line it with the dough. Then take 20 cents worth of round steak or chuck and two lamb's kidneys, if liked; cut up in small pieces, add onion (cut up), pepper and salt and as much cold water as the dish will hold. Cover with a top crust, then cover with a cloth and tie up. Roil three and one-half hours. The gravy when pudding is cut. Do not let the water cover the top of the pudding basin.

Surprise Potatoes.—After potatoes are cooked, drain and make them over a fire for a second to make them nice and mealy, then put through a potato ricer. Put into vegetable dish and around them arrange spoonfuls of rice, yellow turnip, etc.

Tomato Spice Cake.—One and one-half cups tomatoes (canned), one cup sugar (granulated), one-half cup lard, two cups flour (unsifted), one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, two teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon cinnamon, pinch of salt, one tablespoon cocoa. Place lard in a bowl, add sugar, spices and cocoa and mix well. Dissolve soda in tomatoes and add to first mixture, then beat thoroughly. Mix baking powder with flour, add to batter slowly, then pour into baking dish and bake twenty-five to thirty minutes in moderate oven.

Chocolate Sauce for Ice Cream and Puddings.—One square Borden's chocolate, one tablespoon butter, one cup sugar, one-third cup water. Melt chocolate over hot water. Add butter, water and sugar. Boil five minutes. Cool, add vanilla.

GINGLES' JINGLES.
A thirty guy we're told is Harry Hosbit, not a fit by him for useless stuff is blown; he has money by the bale, loads and tons of kale, but a half a million now he will unload. We were much surprised to see in type the headline, just a half a million beans will Harry blow, he is going to take a trip, take a chance on one old ship—old is right, for Harry likes the cheap and slow. But we sure did stop and look and then listen, as we read the headline over a second time, for five hundred thousand beans to a guy like Harry means much, so much his love for it would be sublime. But at last the light was thrown upon the subject, as we read we found the way he doped the gift, that is money he'd shake down as an actor and a clown, but from out his jeans this pile he'd never lift. This is what he'd earn advancing and singing, what he'd pull should he decline to take the trip, but he's out his little pile, hands it over with a smile—in his mind he lets half a million.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
He Beats the Kine to It.
When young wife received your letter, in which you advised her to eat bran and stand on her head, I made up my mind that you were quite sane. But presently she began to look so much better, and feel so much better, that I myself decided to rob the lowing kine of their brains, and the brain treatment has right, and she wonders for me. It is great! It makes a fellow feel like standing on his head or anything! Strange how we look upon a novel idea, isn't it?

ANSWER.—It is passing strange. If we could put up bran in capsules or in the form of an elixer, or if you had to hire some one to rub it in or had to inject it hypodermically, everybody'd take it. Even the big mills might take their way to turn out undernour-

THE PENDULUM SWINGS.

Mistakes of one sort or another are an inevitable part of daily living. The only people who make no mistakes are dead people, says Wayland. "I saw a man last week who has not made a mistake for four thousand years. He was a dummy in the Egyptian department of the British Museum."

And one of the most valuable men who ever lived, namely Gladstone, confessed, "No man ever became great or good except through many mistakes."

The Only Way to Defeat Failure.
The only way to defeat failure is to make of it a rung on the ladder of success.

And the only way to do this, as we have often been told, is not to make the same mistake twice. We hear that warning frequently, and it is an excellent one.

But there is another which is just as necessary. Don't be so afraid of making the same mistake, that you shy off on a tangent and make the opposite mistake.

PTOSIS WITHOUT ANY SLUMP.

A downward sagging or displacement of stomach or intestine is a common cause of stasis, or constipation, and of the various symptoms of stagnation, although the position of the individual may appear good and there is no apparent abdominal distention. Indeed, some of the most misleading cases, in which symptoms strongly suggest such conditions as ulcer or cancer, have been due to nothing but a ptosis or downward displacement of the stomach, demonstrable only by X-ray pictures.

Sometimes the abdomen is prominent, though it does not lump. But the digestive disturbance grows slowly, a little worse despite treatment with "digestive tablets," and the patient begins to lose weight and strength and this loss of strength and weight tends to still further increase the sag—one of those self-sustaining vicious circles.

Indigestion which is quickly relieved by recumbency, especially lying with the head a foot or so higher than the shoulders, suggests ptosis as a cause. In such cases attacks of distress or pain are sometimes prevented by lying in that position for a time after eating.

When considerable underweight is a symptom, it is essential that the patient shall be nourished to the limit, given the best food and forced feeding, in order to take up the slack. The same is true in a case of floating kidney. A woman with a loose kidney is usually long and lean.

Nervous? Yes, of course. Leanness is next to nervousness. One of the few serious objections to radical forms of treatment of the digestive tract, according to Dr. Salaghi, who discussed the subject in the Gazette degli Ospedali e della Cliniche, is the possibility of favoring gastric or intestinal catarrhs predisposed to the condition. But heaven only knows which individuals are likely to slump on a fast. We are hearty in our faith in fasting, for other folks, and we make no bones about urging the merits of the Bread and Milk Club upon overfed, bilious, auto-intoxicated individuals here where food is so attractive—and far better for the human race.

"To me? But why?" The quivering eyes of the girl showed her utter surprise and astonishment. "Why? There, that last night at the agency, you showed that you despised me."

"Never that," he disclaimed. "I was bitter—harsh. But the suddenness of the discovery that you and he—let us not talk of that. It is past. I would not have come back to trouble you, only—"

Again he stopped. "I had to come back and do this thing. It was necessary that you should become owner of the mine—sole owner. It is to be yours, not his. Promise me that you will never give him any share in it. That is all I ask."

"I will not promise unless you tell me your reason for asking it, and unless you tell me your reason for doing what you have done."

Hardy whitened. "Very well, then. It is simply this: If you own the mine, he will wish to marry you."

"If I—But he already wishes to—"

The girl hesitated, and felt silent, her black eyebrows bent in thought.

"I do not seek to persuade you to the contrary," said Hardy. "All I ask is that you give me your promise to allow him no share in the mine."

Marie looked down. After a silence she answered in a low tone: "I promise."

"That is all," he said. "I must now be going."

"Wait," she urged. "You have not told me why—why you have done this."

"Is it necessary?" he replied. "Please do not fancy it. I have promised myself to him. Knowing that I no longer had even a fighting chance, I have merely sought to make sure that he—"

that you should have at least a fair opportunity to be happy. That is all."

He lingered a moment for a last look at her beautiful face, upon which had fallen the inscrutable stolidity of the Indian in her nature. No other expression could have so completely convinced him in his belief that he had his fighting chance to win her.

He turned about to return up the mountain the way he had come.

Marie stood as he left her, silent and motionless, following his bleak aspect up the path to the mine shaft with a white-gloved gaze that perceived the objective image, yet at the same time seemed to be looking inward. A purpling that shaded the black-blackness of her eyes to violet-black alone betrayed the intensity of her emotion.

The receding figure had passed along the spur to the foot of the steep ascent up the mountain before the girl became aware that Vandervyn was close beside her. He started to pass behind, to where Hardy had dropped the rifle and revolver. In a flash of swift movement she sprang ahead of him and set her foot upon the rifle barrel.

"You shall not."

Her voice was low and seemingly tranquil, her face as stolid as before, but the look in her eyes made him hesitate. He glanced about at Dupont.

"You shall not!"

The trader had turned his back on Hardy, and was staring fixedly into the valley at a party of Indians that had come down the far side and were pitching their camp in the meadow. It was a witness that he did not propose to be a victim to any thieving Vandervyn might do.

"Mon pere," quietly called Marie. He shot a startled glance at her, hesitated, and came over to them. Vandervyn's eyes were upturned to the figure on the mountainside in a look of hate that was not pleasant to see. Dupont followed the menacing stare, and then glanced away as if caught in the guilty net. Fast as Hardy was scaling the ascent, he was still within easy rifle shot and would continue to be for several minutes.

Vandervyn moistened his dry lips, and muttered hoarsely: "Take her into the cabin. She won't let me do it."

Dupont coughed and snarled in a husky voice. "Come into the cabin, Marie."

"No," she replied.

"But listen, girl," he urged. "No one won't ever know, and we won't be looking. We can lay it on the same back Indian who has tried to get him twice already. There's a lot of 'em just come into the valley—Don't look at me that way. The dirty sneak has took our mine away from us—he done it by a trick, cutting 'cross about. Mr. Van can't afford to marry you if me and him don't get the mine."

"What if I should get it?" asked

Marie.

"Then you will be married?"

"Yes, I will be married."

"Then you will be married?"

"Yes, I will be married."

"Then you will be married?"

"Yes, I will be married."

I NEVER THOUGHT OF THAT

the girl. "With no shade of change in her inscrutable calm."

Vandervyn whirled upon her, his face convulsed with jealous fury. "So that's it! You've sold yourself to him! You—"

He stopped, silenced by her look.

After a pause she quietly remarked: "He gives me the mine. He is going away. I do not know where. Instead of you, I am to be the owner of the mine. Do you wish to marry me?"

CHAPTER XXIII.

A Wedding Postponed.

Vandervyn's face darkened with suspicion.

"If you're not playing me, then he has lied to you, in order to get away from us."

Marie's lips curved in a half-smile. "He gave me his word of honor. Do you doubt it?"

The young man's jaw dropped slack. He could not even pretend to doubt her statement or Hardy's word. He looked down, his brows knotted and eyes contracted with intense thought.

Dupont took the news in a far different manner.

"By Gar!" he exclaimed. "He's going to give you the mine? You're dead sure of it? By Gar! I call that a mighty square of Cap. It's white! And me a-thinking he done it all to get back at us. It sure is white of Cap. Why, it's nearly the same like he had give it to me!"

"He named only one condition," remarked Marie.

Vandervyn started, and looked up at her. She met him with a level glance that told nothing of what she was thinking.

"One condition," she repeated. "It was my promise not to give you any share in the mine."

"No!" queried Dupont.

"No."

"I see," threatened Vandervyn. "He thinks to force you from having anything to do with me."

"On the contrary, he seemed to think it would—prevent our marrying."

Vandervyn stared in bewilderment. Hardy's action seemed incredible. Then he thought he perceived the explanation, and rolled from his perplexity. His frown gave place to a cynical smile.

"O-ho, my lady! I see. You worked him with the soft pedal—the saphead! The easy mark! He's just the kind of duffer to fall for the wall of a pretty girl with a tear in her eye, a sweet heart in her throat. Good for you, sweetheart! You beat him at his own game. He tried a bluff, thinking you'd be silly enough to throw me over for him. You called him, and he had to make good. The fool—to turn from me to him, just because he made a play to the galleries with his offer! Oh, what an ensnarkment!"

"Is that exactly the right term?" calmly inquired the girl.

"None better!" exclaimed Vandervyn. "He made you promise not to give me a share in the mine. Mining property is rare estate. An agreement in regard to real estate is not binding unless in writing."

Marie's tranquil face took on an expression of artless concern. "Oh, really? Then his promise to give me the mine is not binding."

"Don't worry," reassured Vandervyn. "He will keep his word. You are sure of the mine."

"But, of course, if I take back my promise, it will be no more than fair to give him the chance to take back his," she innocently remarked.

"Not at all, sweetheart," he replied. "You can do as you please. A woman's promises are not considered binding—in business matters. Legally, in most of the states, she is rated as a minor."

"Women ain't minors no longer in our state," interjected Dupont.

"Thank you for reminding me, Pere," said his daughter. She looked at Vandervyn with naive seriousness. "So you see I must keep my promise."

"Oh, I say now, don't be a—"

He detected something behind her look of childlike artlessness, and hastened to concede the point. "But of course if you feel that way about it! You will not have to break your promise after—"

"The law will then make your property mine. So that is settled, sweetheart. Now comes the main question. When shall we be married?"

The girl quivered at the word. He stepped closer, and looked into her eyes, his own glowing golden with ardor. She dropped her gaze, and drew back from him as if confused by the suddenness of his proposal.

"I—must think," she murmured. "I would it not be best to—wait—until he has given me the mine?"

"Not when you have his word that he will do it. Anyway, there's no harm in naming the day. Come, make it an early one!"

The girl's rich color deepened with a blush.

"Not now!" she replied, struggling to recover her composure. "You must wait. Perhaps tomorrow—but now—"

She glanced around as if looking for a way of escape. There was no promise of success in her father's complaint valley. Her gaze darted down into the gate, it rested upon the encamping Indians. "Look," she murmured. "That is Thunderbolt's tepee. I am going down to see him. He should be told that he may be prosecuted if he hunts here now. It is no longer tribal land."

"There's no need, sweetheart," said Vandervyn. "I will see to it that no one interferes with the chief and his band."

"I shall go down and tell him," she insisted. "No, do not come with me."

He frowned at her willfulness, shrugged, and turned to Dupont.

"Come into the cabin, Jake, and give me a drop of something," he urged. "I'm dry as a bone. That ride wasn't a joke!"

Marie was already hastening down the mountain slope into the valley. When she came to the camp, she was received with pleasant greetings. The keen eyes of the Indians had long ago perceived and recognized the white people on the terrace.

The venerable figure of Tiwa-konza appeared in the entrance of a biggest tepee. He disappeared. A moment later three women came out of the tepee, and one of them told the girl that the chief wished her to go in. She stooped and passed through the low opening.

The chief was seated at the far side of the tepee near an outstretched blanket form. There was no one else present. He beckoned Marie to come across to him. As she approached, she saw that the hair of the still figure before him was braided after the fashion of the maidens of the tribe. She bent over and looked into a face that was so thin and pale that at first she did not recognize it. The large, sunken eyes opened and looked up at her with a startled gaze.

"Olnna!" she exclaimed, and she knelt down beside the girl. "You are ill!"

"No—Go 'way, please," begged the wretched girl. A slow flush reddened her wan face. She sought to turn from the visitor. "I want to be alone. I am ashamed. Go 'way, please."

Marie looked up at Tiwa-konza. He saw the pity in her eyes, and spoke softly in Lakotah:

"Rose who art white yet red, in the flower of the golden lily a worm is gnawing. The golden lily withers. Pluck out the worm, else she will fade and go from me."

He stood up and wrapped his blanket about him and went out.

An hour passed. Through the canvas wall of the tent the outside heard a low murmuring and at times the sound of sobbing. At last Marie raised the edge of the tepee and spoke to a group of women. One of them hastened to fetch from the fire a bowl of hot broth. She went into the tepee, and at once came out again without the bowl.

But no more crying could be heard, and gradually the sound of the low voices within the tepee died away to silence. Tiwa-konza came back to the entrance, listened awhile, and noiselessly slipped inside.

Olnna lay with her head on Marie's breast. Her eyes were closed. She had fallen into the peaceful, healing slumber of childhood. A smile hovered on her half-parted lips. The bowl beside her was empty.

Very gently Marie laid the sleeping girl's head upon a blanket roll, and rose to come across to the silent grandfather. They talked for several minutes in Lakotah. When she stepped past him and left the tepee, his face was still set in the stoical calm of the Indian warrior of his generation, but his proud old eyes were glistening with unshed tears and a stern tone.

POINT LOMA ONE OF CALIFORNIA'S WONDERFUL SIGHTS

Mrs. Lizzie A. Lucy Writes of Her Impressions on Viewing the Famous Government Reservation.

Mrs. Lizzie A. Lucy, who is spending the winter in California at San Diego, has sent the following pen picture of Point Loma to a friend and it is so graphic the Gazette reproduces it for the benefit of its readers who have not been able to journey to this wonderful spot and see for themselves what Mrs. Lucy describes. Point Loma is the extreme southern portion of the United States, and belongs to the government. Here stands the old Spanish lighthouse, built in 1851, about 480 feet above the sea. Add to this the fifty feet to the top of the tower, and there is no call for wonder that incoming ships mistook its beacon light for a star. For this reason it was abandoned and another built at sea level. The party stood mute, touched by the beauty of the scene, when suddenly and in a manner to make one gasp, this arc of a silver disk appeared above the purple mountains on the east, and promptly, as in a theatre, the moon, enormous, pale, ghostly, swung into view, arriving full-orbed upon the scene in time to witness the glories of departing day. It was an amazing spectacle. The bold, rocky headland jutting out into the ocean, windswept and desolate; to the left the rising moon, vapory and tremulous as a cloud-wraith; to the right the sun sinking into the western sea in a blaze of glory, and sending a broad track of molten gold to break against the rock shore. Just behind stood the abandoned light-house, white and spiritual against a turquoise sky, and in front, far out at sea, were seen the dim outlines of the Coronado Islands, and more clearly the level top of Table Mountain, of old Mexico, looking like a comparatively near neighbor but in reality something like 150 miles away.

The view from this point is considered by so competent a judge as Charles Dudley Warner to be the third most beautiful in the world, this on the word of the khaki-clad chauffeur, youthful but resolute. When he spoke we harkened, and when he commanded we fell over our own feet in our zeal to execute. Most likely he will finish up as a major general.

We were on the superb government boulevard, hard and smooth; there was no competition and no opposition, and we sped on over the undulating surface as though hurled from a catapult. Only one pause was made, viz., to pick up the passengers of another car of the same fleet whose machine had gone dead on the road. Then we resumed our wild fight to the city, arriving at the U. S. Grant Hotel while the afterglow was still blazing in the west. That we all were still intact was due to the mysterious Providence which hovers above reckless chauffeurs. It was sure some trip.

The Los Angeles dispatch gave no details beyond the fact that the authorities expect to capture the suspect today.

It is the idle life and the empty mind and the empty soul that is in the greatest peril. It is on the vacant land that they shoot all the filthy rubbish. The bad pictures get on the walls because there are vacant spaces. It is a useless thing to try to exterminate evil in your life as though that were the end of your being. It is not enough to check vice, to say to your children, "Thou shalt not," and to suggest nothing positive. Be positive.—Rev. Charles Brown, D. D.

HIGH SCHOOL BEGINS BASKETBALL TODAY

First Practice of Season Called By Coach Keck for This Afternoon. —Good Team Expected.

With the opening of the basketball season interest in this sport at the Jansville high school is keen, and a large squad is expected out for the first practice this afternoon. Jansville has always stood well in this sport, with the result that students at this high school are much more enthusiastic supporters of the game than they are of football.

For the past few seasons the coaches have always had at least twenty men out throughout the entire season, and these twenty have been the best material left from a beginning squad of about fifty. Though there have been no sign of the coaches at the high school expect a larger squad this year than ever before.

Students have forgotten the rather unsuccessful football season and have set their eyes on a prominence in the basketball world this winter. Coach Keck, coach of the football team until he was injured on the sidelines early in the season, will take charge of the squad. He will be assisted by Mr. Raymond of the industrial school faculty.

Such of the old material has already been lined up by the coaches, and it is not likely that ineligibility will hurt the team. There is some good looking material in the new boys and on the whole the coaches and students are most optimistic over the coming season.

BIG FIRMS FIND GOLFERS LAX; TO BANISH THEM

Washington, Dec. 4.—Big business interests are considering the elimination of golf players from managerial positions.

Observation, it was said today, has shown that golf players produce less than non-golf players and that business has deteriorated under their supervision.

This is apparent, it is asserted, both in the United States and England.

MORRIS MILLER

Let Darcy, the Australian star, who just at present is busy showing his loyalty to the color, is a scrap who must not be overlooked when light heavyweights are mentioned. Darcy is one of the chaps who, with training, can make the middleweight limit, but he has fought and licked so many heavyweights in his native country that he is considered a light heavyweight. There has been some talk of Darcy coming to the country to meet Gibbons, for it looks as if this pair were the real goods, but it is learned from a reliable source that no such thing is likely to happen. If Darcy fights Gibbons, it will be on Australian soil.

There are reasons why Darcy does not think it would be advisable to fight Gibbons on American soil. He has heard all kinds of tales about the treatment he would receive here, and has listened to the bunk which has caused his decision to remain at home and force Gibbons to tackle him on his native beach if Mike cares to battle.

It may surprise some, but it is not entirely unlikely that Gibbons some of these days may pack up his gear and make the trip to Australia to "call" Darcy. Some few days before the Phantom fought Dillon in St. Paul he was talking to Harry Sherman, the promoter who staged the bout, and according to Sherman, he remarked: "After I lick Dillon I want to lick a couple of other fellows; then I may close my boxing career with a trip to Australia." And if Gibbons goes to Australia everybody knows there will be a Gibbons-Darcy battle.

Toronto's famous One Hundred and Eightieth Sportsman's battalion, which will soon participate in the European war, is made up of 1,157 soldiers of all ranks, each of whom has been connected with sports. Included in the battalion is Tom Longboat, famous Indian marathon runner; Teddy Wood, English professional runner; and a host of other sportsmen. Consider it the most progressive and protective to the welfare and interests of the public and clean sport that could possibly be arranged.

Gene Melady is hard at work on his proposed amendment for an athletic bill in Nebraska, which he intends to have introduced at the coming session of the legislature. It will be one of the most attractive boxing bills in existence in this country, and sportsmen consider it the most progressive and protective to the welfare and interests of the public and clean sport that could possibly be arranged.

The bill will call for fifteen round decision contests, positively no guarantee for the boxers, under commission form, legalized boxing clubs, physician's certificate, no gambling, and five per cent of the gross receipts to go to the state for its tuberculosis fund, under the supervision of a commission appointed by the government without compensation for service. It will be no expense to the state and will make a good revenue for a deserving and worthy cause.

Such a bill will eliminate the unsatisfactory conditions that exist in some states where boxing is legalized. Melady claims that the no decision contest is unsatisfactory from a public standpoint and that the exorbitant guarantees the boxers ask is another poor condition. If performers are compelled to work on

WEATHER FORECAST MOST IMPORTANT

News That Merely Makes City Man Take Umbrella May Result in Strenuous Crop-Protecting Operations on Farm

Few city people reading the weather forecasts in their daily papers realize the importance of a warning of rain, snow, frost or high winds may have for the farmer, fruit grower, and stock raiser in the country. The message which causes the city man merely to debate whether he shall carry an umbrella or take his overcoat, when telegraphed to country points, may be farmer as news of the greatest agricultural importance. Such a message over the phone may cause the entire countryside to become a scene of intensive activity. There is a rush to hay or grain fields to get in the crop or, in the spring, work like beavers covering young seedlings in the truck garden with paper or other protection from frost, or preparing to build fires or light smudges in orchards. On ranches every available worker may be dispatched to herd in sheep or stock to protect them from storms. To them the message, which in the city may have foretold only slight personal discomfort, may mean heavy monetary losses to the unprepared farm or ranch.

On the other hand a forecast predicting good or bad weather for three or four days to come may send thousands of reapers into the fields to take advantage of favorable weather, and, as it by magic, change the scene from one of harvesting grain or grass into a scene of haystacks or wheat sheaves.

FINAL PEACE PLEA EXPECTED FROM POPE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Rome, Dec. 4.—The Pope's review of his attempt to prevent the war, then to stop it, then to shorten it, coupled with a new and final appeal for peace, is believed to have been delivered by the pontiff to a secret consistory here today.

It is said to be one of the most important documents issued by the Vatican since the war began. The Pope has been working on it for many weeks.

The allocation will show, it is said, how the Holy See has been absolutely neutral in the war, predicating all its actions on a desire to stop or shorten hostilities and alleviate the sufferings of those affected.

It is believed the allocation will make another earnest appeal to the faithful throughout the world to continue their prayers for peace. It is said that in conferring with Cardinals Gasparri, Delais, Mannucci and Serafini the Pope decided not to refer in the allocation to Polish autonomy, the deportation of Belgians nor efforts of individual nations for peace.

SNIPER LIVES OUT OF 201 SNIPERS BUT SLEEPS SOUNDLY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] London, Dec. 4.—Trooper W. E. Sing of Queensland, an Anzac veteran, who has bagged 201 snipers, never loses any sleep holding nocturnal arguments with his victims' ghosts. Sing sleeps a healthy slumber and his only complaint is that he doesn't get quite enough time.

"I never made any difference in my personal feelings," said Sing today. "I felt that the Turks were out to get me just as eager to accomplish the job as I was to put them off to watch."

"Nine Turks in one day was my best bag, I believe. I did have some regret that night when I crawled into my dugout for a few weeks; regret that they were not Germans instead of Turks. For after all we have found the Turk a pretty good sport and a game fighter."

The sniper feels when he tumbles an enemy out of a tree, or picks him off from behind a rock, that he is saving the lives of his own companions. He knows that if he allows a live Turk to slip through his fingers, an unlimited number of pals. Why, then, shouldn't a sniper sleep well after a successful day's work? Sing isn't through sniping yet. He learned to shoot while hunting kangaroos.

DUSTER MAILS ONE OF SEASON'S BEST

Duster Mails.

Duster Mails, the Brooklyn Dodgers' young pitching recruit, has been picked by his teammates to set the league afire next season. Players who know what Mails has yet to show declare that he is going to be a big surprise when he gets started. He has lots of undeveloped stuff and has a great build for a hurler.

The United States weather bureau has perfected special system and facilities for obtaining and disseminating advance weather news adapted to the protection of growers of many special crops in different sections of the country. In immediate action the weather reports received from its 290 stations and from 4,500 other observation points, the bureau has established a large number of special stations for observing crop weather conditions in the corn, wheat, cotton, sugar, rice and cattle raising districts. The object of this service is to furnish the growers of each of these crops with the summer with information that will enable them to handle the crops to best advantage. The corn and wheat region service covers, for example, the states of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, ## ---and the Worst Is Yet to Come

A suffrage talk and loud rings on a cowbell put to flight two highwaymen who waylaid a party of women in New Jersey on a recent day. "What is this?" asked one highwayman of another, and the latter, not knowing, replied by flight precipitate, in which his colleague joined.—Springfield Republican.

HOW IT IS DONE IN THE EAST

Soldier's Experience With Turkish Officer Who Was Not Above Bribing.

I had had experience with corruptible Turkish officers; and one day, when barrack conditions became unendurable, I went to the officer commanding our division—an old Arab from Latakiah who had been called from retirement at the time of the mobilization. He lived in a little tent near the mosque, where I found him squatting on the floor, nodding drowsily over his comfortable pouch. As he was an officer of the old regime I entered boldly, squatted beside him and told him my troubles. The answer came with an enormous shrug of the shoulders.

"You are serving the sultan. Hardship should be sweet!"

"I should be more fit to serve him if I got more sleep and rest."

He waved his fat hand about the tent.

"Look at me! Here I am, an officer of rank and—" shooting a knowing look at me—"I have not even a nice blanket."

"A crime! A crime!" I interrupted. "To think of it, when I, a humble soldier, have dozens of them at home, I should be honored if you would allow me—" my voice trailed off suggestively.

"How could you get one?" he asked.

"Oh, I have friends here in Saffed; but I must be able to sleep in a nice place."

"Of course, certainly. What would you suggest?"

"That hotel kept by the Jewish widow might do," I replied.

More amenities were exchanged, the upshot of which was that my four friends and I were given permission to sleep at the inn—a humble place, but infinitely better than the mosque. It was all perfectly simple.—Atlantic Monthly.

ODD PLACES TO HIDE CASH

Woman Concealed Savings on Her Mother's Grave—Safety Deposit in Cannon.

The woman who, as just revealed in the law courts, hid her savings on her mother's grave in Forest Hill cemetery probably hit upon a unique cache. But there is no saving. The person who mistrusts savings banks generally looks around for the most unlikely spot in which to deposit wealth, and more than one may hit on the same idea.

Old cannon, for instance, seem to form favorable depositories. Quite a quantity of jewelry was found some while ago in a solitary gun which stands in the fort at Shoreham, and about the same time a bag containing 70 sovereigns was discovered in an old cannon in Peel park, Bradford.

From one of the old Crimean cannon at Liverpool also some inquisitive youngsters once brought forth a soldier's discharge papers and notes to the value of £100.—London Chronicle.

Denounced the "Topper."

The case against the "Topper" was summed up many years ago by the famous Punch editor, Mark Lemon. "It is hot in summer," he said, "it is not warm in winter; it does not shade us from the sun, it does not shelter us from the rain; it is ugly and expensive; you cannot wear it in a railway carriage; it is always in your way in a drawing room; if you sit on it you crush it, yet it will not save your skull in a fall; it will not go into a portmanteau; it is too hard to roll up, too soft to stand upon; it rusts with the sea air, it spots with the rain; if it is good you are sure to have it taken by mistake at a soiree; if it is bad you are set down for a swindler."—London Chronicle.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Dec. 4, 1876.—Dr. Loomis, who has been confined to his bed for several days by scarlet fever, is rapidly improving.

One year ago today commenced the eleven days of fog and mist, during which the sun was not seen.

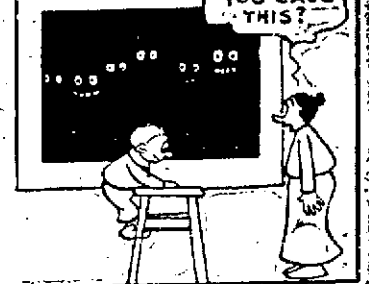

The little son of Conductor Proper was severely kicked in the forehead today. He is able to walk about, however. Dr. Woodworth dressed the wound this afternoon.

We regret to announce that E. P. Ellison is lying in a critical condition at his residence in this city. He has been confined to his bed for several days, and during the latter part of last week his symptoms were most favorable, but today his condition is not so promising.

Miss Helen Russell, superintendent of McKee & Bros. millinery department, has just returned from Chicago, after spending a week in studying the winter styles in hats and bonnets and making selections of fashionable materials for trimming purposes. The ladies of Janesville will now find Miss Russell prepared to execute their orders in the highest style of the art.

This forenoon the Monroe passenger for Milwaukee left this station about ten minutes ahead of time, and no sooner had it crossed the bridge than it was approaching the curve near the city limits, than a wild wood train came thundering around the curve. For a few minutes there was a good deal of whistling, jamming down of brakes, and finally the trains were brought to a halt just in time to check us out of a local item.

German Arms Plant Village Target For Allied Airmen

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—In connection with the recent air raid on the German town of Oberndorf, in which the American aviators flying French bombers in the French flying corps, lost his life, the National Geographic society issues the following war geography bulletin:

"The Mauser rifle factory which was the objective of the air raiders who flew over the Black Forest to the quaint little Württemberg town of Oberndorf recently, was once an Augustinian monastery, but long before the present war began its halls had ceased to shelter holy fathers. Gun-making has been an established industry of this city on the Neckar for a number of years, and only a few miles to the south there is an important powder factory."

"Oberndorf lies 40 miles east of the Rhine and 100 miles northeast of the great French fortress of Epinal. It is 57 miles by rail southwest of Stuttgart on the line which runs to Schaffhausen, 88 miles distant. The Neckar flows beneath the town, to the east."

"It is only 15 miles from Oberndorf to the birthplace and place of burial of the famous novelist of peasant life in the Black forest—Berthold Auerbach. Noristadt is the name of the little village which is the 'Holle' world (the author of 'And der Holle' (On the Heights) and the 'Schwarzwalder Dorfgeschichten'."

"In the opposite direction, to the south, is Rottweil, 11 miles distant, an ancient town with 10,000 population which was a free imperial city as far back as the 13th century. The townspeople are largely engaged in the manufacture of powder, locomotives, and machinery, besides conducting an active trade in wines and livestock. A town hall and two churches of the medieval period contain some interesting examples of German art and sculpture, while a striking bit of Roman mosaic recalls the fact that the ancient Roman colony once existed three-quarters of a mile south of the town at Rottweil-Alstadt."

"While guns are made at Oberndorf and gunpowder at Rottweil, the people of this part of Germany are more at home in the manufacture of clocks, watches, toys and musical instruments."

"Every valley and mountain of this region has contributed its legend or folk-tale to the German literature. The forests of fir are supposed to be the abode of the pixie and of witches. But of more interest to the practical-minded is the remarkable system of roads which thread all this part of Württemberg. Every valley has its stream, and alongside every stream is a wonderfully graded, perfectly kept road fifteen feet wide, resembling the driveways in the most famous of our American parks. These roads are constantly tended by a peasant army of road-menders whose daily wage amounts to about 50 cents."

"Forestry is one of the chief sources of revenue for the numerous small towns like Oberndorf, and the conservation of tree wealth has been developed to an almost exact science. Both on the royal land and in the community forests, the amount of timber cut annually is not allowed to exceed the annual growth. Numerous fir tree nurseries are scattered throughout the region."

87 LAME DUCKS TO WASHINGTON FOR LAST TIME

This Number Distributed Among Both Houses Represents the Has Been in 64th Congress.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, Dec. 4.—Seventeen members of the Senate and "lame-duck" members of the House today began their final legislative duties. When the spotlight fades March 4 on the Sixty-fourth Congress, they will gather up their togas and start for home on private citizenship.

These "lame ducks" are those the populace turned thumbs down upon in the last election. Their service ranges anywhere from a little less than a year, in the case of Senator Tom Fugart of Indiana, to 22 years in the case of Senator Clarence D. Clark of Wyoming and Representative Sparkman of Florida. Clark is the third in point of service in the Senate and Sparkman fourth in continuous service in the House.

Probably the most conspicuous figure in the lineup of the prospective lame-duck is Senator John W. Kern, senatorial candidate for Vice-President and Senate Democratic floor leader and chairman of the post-poned committee on prize cases. He went to office on prize cases. He went to office on prize cases. He went to office on prize cases.

W. E. Kirby, of Arkansas, will succeed the late Senator Clarke. Senator Chilton of West Virginia, well-known here for his interest in blooded horses as well as for his legislative activities, will make way for Representative Howard Sutherland, Republican, who fought his way from the House to the Senate in two sessions. Senator Johnson of Maine, elected to the Senate in 1910, will be succeeded next Congress by Frederick Hale, son of the late Senator from Maine. Blair Lee of Maryland sealed two political fates for the present. He was defeated in the primaries by Representative David J. Lewis—father Lewis of the late Senator from Maryland—Dr. Joseph I. France.

Another of the old-timers listed among the missing at the next session will be Senator du Pont of Delaware. Du Pont is succeeded by J. O. Wolcott, Democrat.

Four men among the new ones are of particular interest. Philander C. Knox, former Secretary of State and former Senator, will replace Senator Oliver, Republican also—in the limelight last season when he was accused of having big war bride holdings. He was not a candidate for re-election. Peter Goulet Berry, of the upper strata of Newport, and a Democrat, will succeed Senator Linnitt of Rhode Island, Republican.

Political interest will center on Frank B. Kellogg—trust-busting Kellogg of some years back—former governor and Senator-elect from Minnesota to succeed Senator Clapp, also Republican; and Senator-elect Hiram Johnson of California—succeeding Senator Works, likewise Republican, not a candidate for re-election. Kellogg and Johnson there is talk that they won't line up with the hard-shelled Republicans unless the lining up is done on their side of the street.

The other Senators now in their last session, with their successors, are: Martin of New Jersey, Democrat, succeeded by J. E. Frelinghuysen, Republican; Democrat, not a candidate, succeeded by Calder, Republican; Catron of New Mexico, Republican, not a candidate, succeeded by Andrews A. Jones, Democrat, present Assistant Secretary of the Interior, and Sutherland of Utah, Republican, defeated by William H. King, Democrat.

The House, by grace of the changing favor of the country, lost its two most picturesque members and gained another who bids fair to surpass in popular interest and on record.

"Cyclone" Davis, foe of rum and preparedness and friend of prohibition and flannel shirts, will make room for another Democrat from Texas—Daniel E. Garrett, Davis with flowing whiskers and conversation gained a measure of fame when in the Congressional Record he stated he was not a "collar" Democrat and when in the House proper he later confessed he had fallen a victim to the "collar and bestive necktie. He says 'booze and boodle' defeated him."

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma, who jumped lightly into the gallery of immortals when at the Baltimore convention, asked how the Oklahoma delegation stood, he replied: "We stand as a unit; separately, we will be succeeded by T. D. McKeown, Democrat."

But the House's taste for the picturesque will be appeased with Miss Jeanette Rankin of Montana, Republican, who succeeds Lame Duck Tom Stout, Democrat.

Representative Buchanan of Illinois, Democrat, indicted in the Labor Peace Council probe in New York during the hyphen activities last year will fade into the west in favor of Niels R. Julius, Republican.

Hyde Tavenner, Democrat, of the same state, who exchanged insults with the Navy league all last spring, succeeded by William J. Graham, Republican.

Charles H. Randall, of Los Angeles, will continue to represent the prohibitionist party in Congress, despite a tendency "repeatedly to call him a Democrat and in some cases an independent."

The political history of the next session depends on how the members having the balance of power—Prohibitionist, a Socialist, a couple of independents and several members, who may vote any way at all—shape up their party preferences.

When the call is sounded for election of a Speaker, the country will find whether the house really is democratic or Republican.

DRAFT BOILER CODE FOR ENTIRE NATION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Washington, Dec. 4.—The American Uniform Boiler Law society will begin a "three days" conference here Wednesday, December 6, to draft legislation for uniform construction and regulation of steam boilers. President Wilson, delegates from thirty-four states and expert mechanical engineers will deliver addresses.

The convention has been called by the industrial Commission of Ohio with a view to drafting a boiler code with a view to drafting a boiler code with a view to drafting a boiler code.

There is very little legislation to govern the construction of boilers in this country. Massachusetts, California, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, Indiana, Minnesota, and Montana are declared to be the only states which have adequate laws on the subject.

C. C. Galloway, chief deputy of the Division of Boiler Inspection of the Industrial Commission will preside and the opening address will be by T. J. Duffy, of the Industrial Commission of Ohio. Edward N. Hurley, of the Federal Trades Commission will speak on "Standardization as Effecting Industrial Efficiency"; Prof. F. R. Hutton, Columbia University, on "Safety in Boiler Construction"; John C. McCabe, Chief Boiler Inspector of the City of Detroit on "Steam Boiler Inspection"; Henry Hess, of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, on the "A. S. M. E. Boiler Code" and Thomas E. Durban, of Erie, chair of the American Uniform Boiler Society, on a "Plea for Uniform Boiler Specifications." Former President W. H. Taft has been asked to deliver the closing address of the convention.

U. S. MORE ACCURATE WITH CROP ESTIMATES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Washington, Dec. 4.—The method of estimating the size of the country's farm crops has been so improved and systematized that the actual production of important products is now made with a close degree of accuracy by the Bureau of Crop Estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture. Nearly two million scheduled uses are handled each year by that bureau in making up the government monthly crop reports. About one hundred and sixty thousand names are constantly making personal investigations, one agent covering a state; and 105 clerks are employed in Washington handling the large number of reports from the voluntary crop reporters and to keep records of crop information of this and foreign countries.

So carefully and systematically has the work been organized that the 1915 cotton crop estimate was only three-tenths of one per cent less than the amount actually ginned as reported by the Census Bureau after the close of the season. The most complete record in existence is kept in the Bureau of the Estimates and Statistics relating to the world's crops and live stock.

LEPER KILLS GIRL TO EAT FLESH, CURE

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 4.—Justifying his act by the Korean superstition that the eating of human flesh is a cure for leprosy, a Korean leper named Sin Kungsyun has confessed to the murder of a five-year-old boy whose mutilated body was discovered in a field in South Cholla province. A field in South Cholla province. A field in South Cholla province. A field in South Cholla province.

Lepers in Korea hitherto led a miserable life. With the exception of those cared for by missionaries in a small hospital near Pusan, they have been left to roam at will and eke out their own living. The superstition as to cannibal cure is very general. Not infrequently cannibalism has been reported from the remote districts.

Count Terauchi, until recently governor-general, took up the leper problem vigorously last year and as a result an island called Sorok on the southern coast of Korea has been selected as the seat of a leper asylum. It is proposed to take in at first some hundred lepers selected from the thirteen provinces in proportion to the number in each. During their stay on the island the lepers will be taught modern farming.
